

SECTION A-B

21st century housing – nowadays the human being in itself lost the Way to connect with is habitat, the relations became more impersonal. People tend to live with “strangers” because they see it as a way to know other cultures, other people and ways of living.

I tried to set the right path for those kind of people , that i think in a few years will be a lot, and spaces where they could all get to know each other and live amongst their private and semi-private áreas by offering

4 bedrooms, a toilet and a shower área in the upper floor and a servisse toilet, a kitchen and a living room

That could anything else, downstairs.

This could be applied in almost every place on earth, such as nature or the city. Although it has Windows in the four façades it's something that could change depending the circumstances.
