

The function doesn't exist, everyone creates own function. It's enough to choose curtain of your choice. House is variable to life's circumstances such as growing family, improvement of living status, changing of users or their progressive age.

The main principle of our house is modular unit in form of a cube 3x3x3 meters. We come with generalized idea of a flat composed of nine cubes thanks to what we get a space of dimensions 9x9x3 meters. Generous space for living for every user. Created inner space isn't loaded with bearing structure which could possibly divide space without satisfaction of our imagination. The owner becomes the architect of his own living space and oneself defines level of comfort and intimacy.

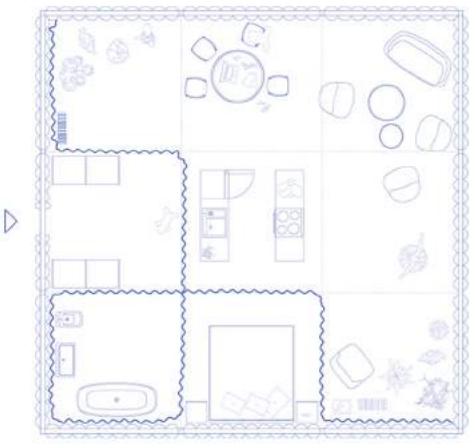

It means that the division itself is created by form of curtain which are changeable and give opportunity to infinite variability of colorful and material combination of fabric. The space becomes in a while multifunctional or closed to itself as an introvert and gains intimate character of monofunctionality. We can observe it on good example: Do you want to present your house to visit as an open big space where everyone can go everywhere or on the other side use a curtain as a stylish hide for mess which you didn't clean up in time.

Flexibility is supported by a software application created especially for the house. Occupant of it can adapt whole inner layout according to mood, social occasions, part of the day, weather, seasons in few minutes. Both an introvert or exhibitionist could enrich from it. The application would be intuitive and designed for very easy manipulation through smartphone, tablet or other electronic devices.

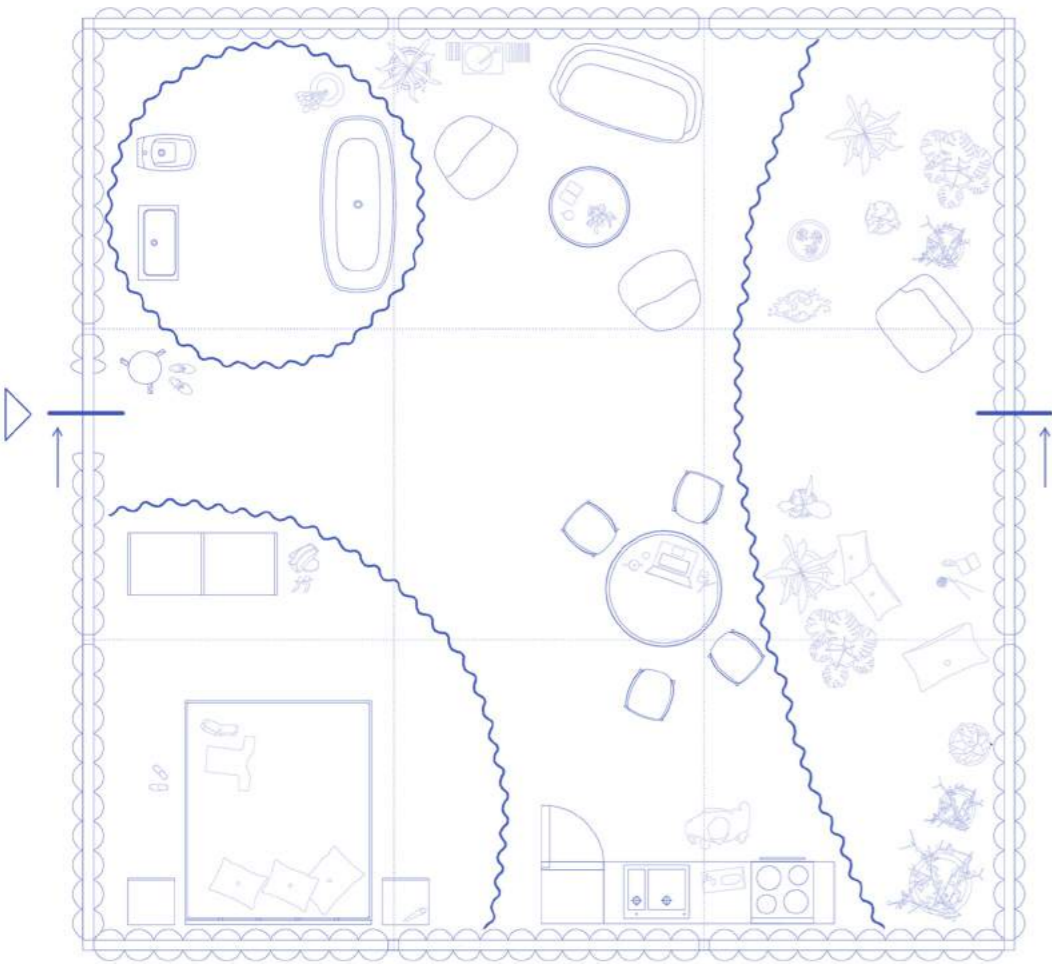

As we talk about system of moving curtains we use magnetic ceiling on the principle of pixels. On the ceiling there are electromagnets which are switching on /off according to the application in the device and then the magnet attached to the top of fabric moves wherever we want and creates various spaces. It's that simple: you just draw your preferred scheme. It has almost illimitable track, it depends only of choosing a type (material, length) of fabric. As time goes there is opportunity to change living space as you wish.

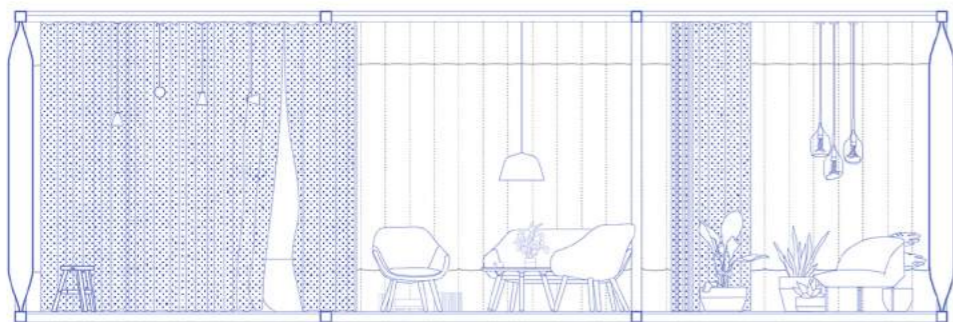

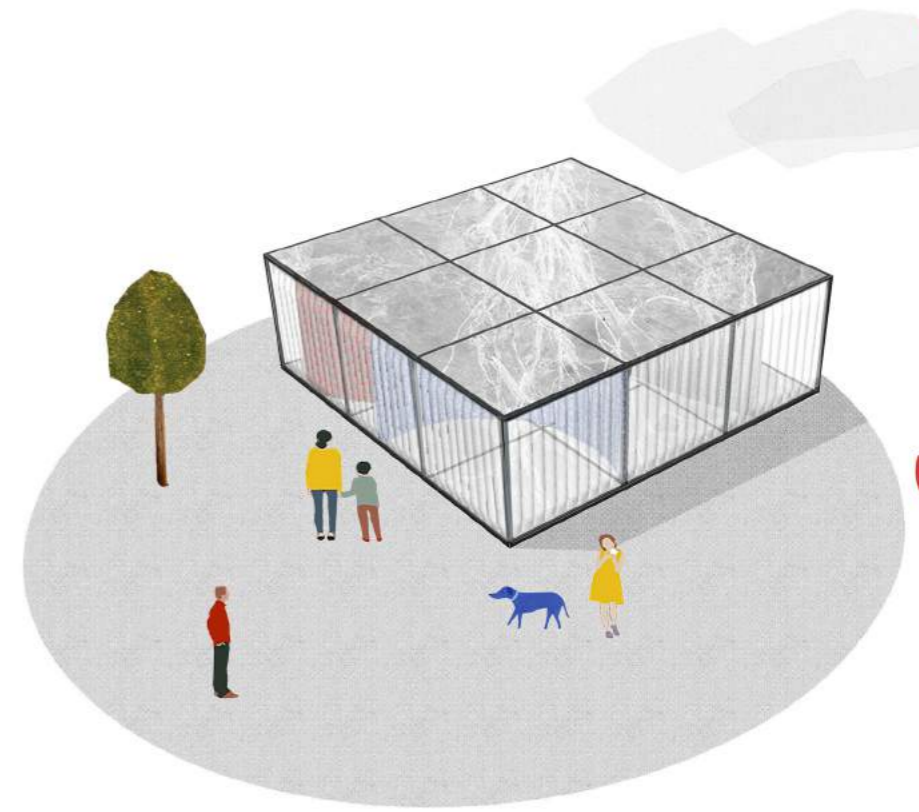

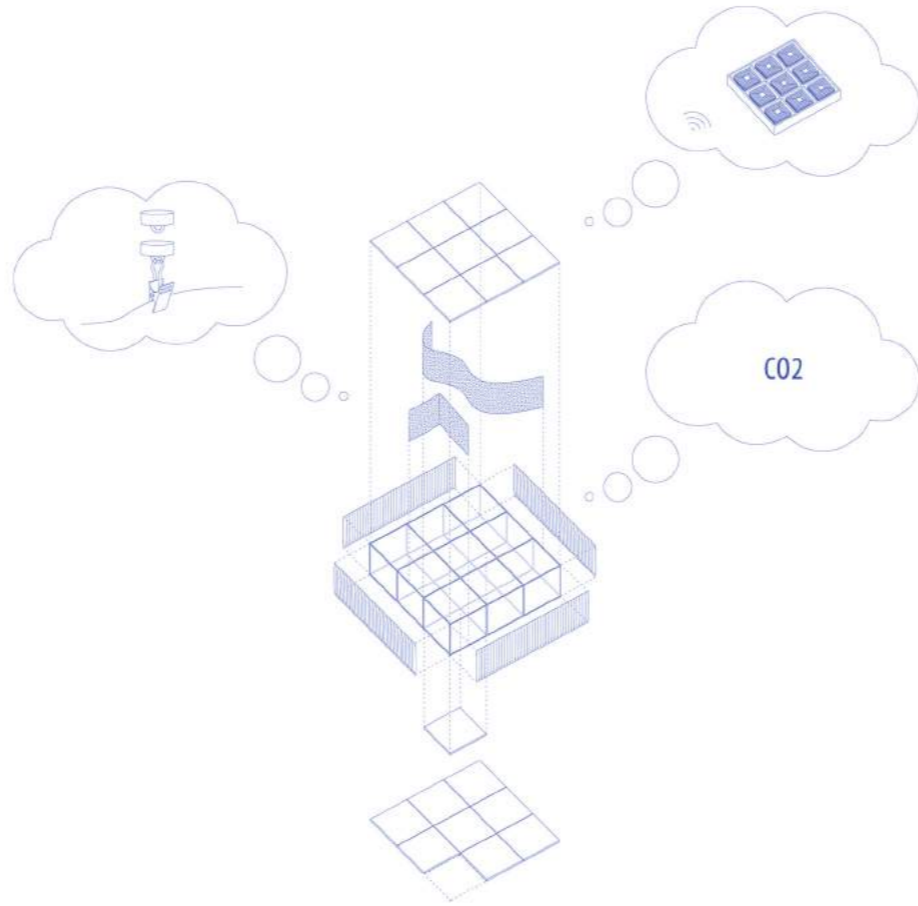

variability of floor plan

floor plan

section

fram:ic

