

WALL OF TALES

Imagine an open space for children to wander around, be curious, and come across tales unknown. Instead of an enclosed space, the books in the library along with the canteen are brought outside, where children love being the most.

Every wall has a tale to tell amidst thousands of them all.

team4828

placement of the built form on the site

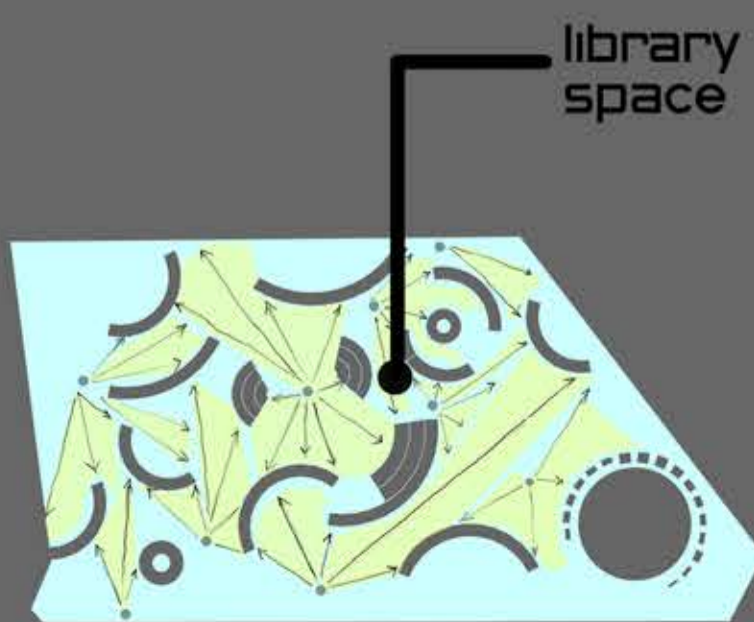

view from canteen area towards library

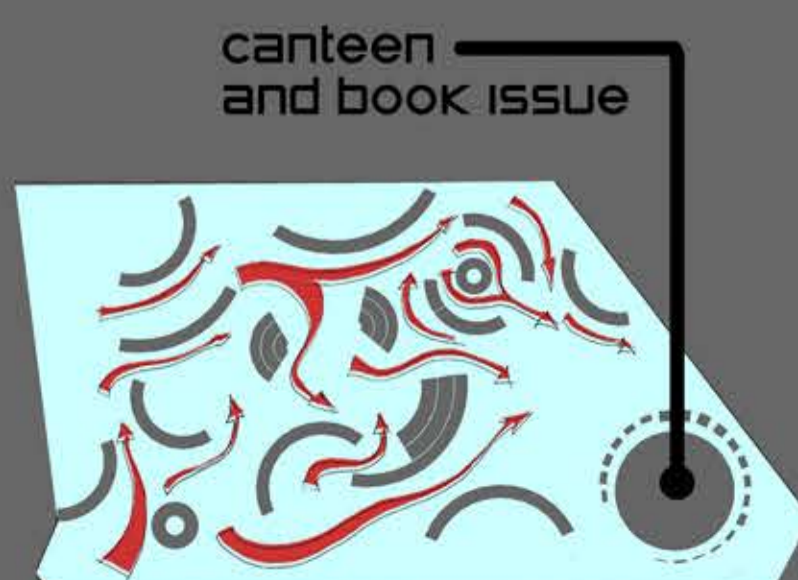

the wall is subdivided into partitions that act as cabinet to store books.

the other side of the wall has a folktale inscribed on it, the fenestration in between acts as a seating area and allows free movement of children.

visual angles and vistas created by intersecting walls movement along the site creating a busy, interactive environment for kids

team4828