

Puan Yang City, China

The Way of the Buyi: Beyond imagination

The project aims to create spaces that nurtures the creative as well as physical health of the young students. The idea of the form has been derived from that of jungle gyms in playgrounds. This particular jungle gym however encapsules activities such as a library, canteen and seating for the students. It allows for easy supervision without the use of rigid forced geometry that instructs students how to behave along certain spaces. The entire concept is formulated using 60cmx60cmx60cm steel frames that appears to give the impression of a heavy mass balancing itself on a thin transparent wall. The flexibility of the layout allows for incoporating multiple activities based on the time and occupancy to which the space is subjected.

