

no-phone space

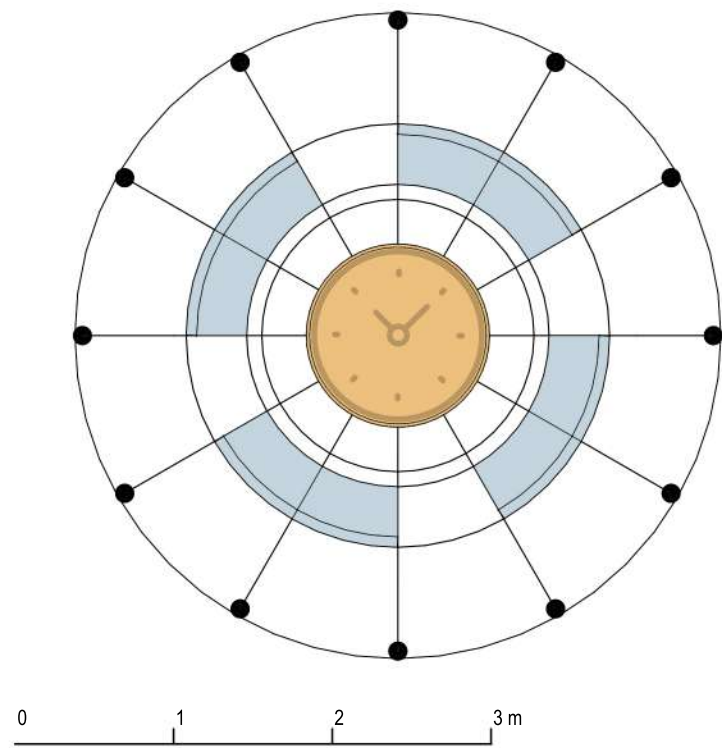

people have limited time to live. therefore, time is precious and should not be wasted. time must be used wisely.

how much time do you spend in a day connecting with someone on your phone? on the other hand, how much time do you spend in a day interacting with someone physically?

you will not realize how much time has gone by, and before you know it, you have none left. do not spend too much of your limited time on a mere virtual world, communicating without the bond formed by a physical, real-life interaction. do not let the digital world take over your life.

put down your phone.
sit down.
talk.

the small and inward space creates an intimate atmosphere between the people inside. everyone must put their phones on the table. the phones must not be touched, let alone be used.

in this intimate, phoneless atmosphere, people can focus on giving their time to the person next to them.
